Mr. Editor:

In starting the machine on a New Years run, we find that it needs more grease. You may say to the Pholks that if they want to dance again this year they must pay the fiddler of dance to the rattle of dry bones.

It's a matter of choice with them and a matter of business with us. The man who sold us, wants sugar in his'n consequently we must have some sugar in our'n.

You might throw out a gentle hint to those who have not done so to come right on and come right now.
